The rules below basically say that if the file exists in the tree, just # serve it; otherwise, go to index.php. This is more future-proof for your # site, because if you start adding more and more content types, you don't # need to alter the .htaccess to accomodate them.
This is an important concept for the Front Controller Pattern which the # ZF MVC makes use of.
